

A Tourist Visiting Hong Kong

Miss Morris was an Australian tourist visiting Hong Kong. Her friends, Andy and Sally lived in Hong Kong. They invited Miss Morris to Hong Kong for a trip.

On the first day, Sally and Andy arrived Hong Kong Airport to meet Miss Morris. Miss Morris was so excited about the three days and two nights she was going to spend in Hong Kong. She was as happy as a clam.

After that, Miss Morris went to Sally and Andy's house to drop off her suitcase. They went to their home by bus. When Miss Morris saw the roads of Hong Kong, she was shocked and worried. She used her hand to cover her mouth and nose. Miss Morris coughed and said, 'In Hong Kong, the traffic generates so much carbon dioxide. The buses produce so many fumes. People can easily get pulmonary diseases because they are always inhaling exhaust fumes. It will also make our earth sick and create air pollution. Sally was shocked too because she did not realise that was happening in Hong Kong. Miss Morris's favourability towards Hong Kong was decreasing.

The next day, Miss Morris went shopping with Sally. She saw many horrible things, like crocodile leather handbags. Miss Morris felt upset and angry about it. She said sadly, "Hunters will keep hunting and killing crocodiles unless they all die and become extinct." Miss Morris didn't have much favourability left for Hong Kong.

On the last day, Miss Morris went to a seafood restaurant to have lunch with Sally and Andy. They suggested Miss Morris join them for a special dish, "Let's eat shark fin soup!" Andy pointed at the board which said 'Special offer'. "One hundred dollars each!" "No! I will never eat shark fin soup! Do you know how cruel and selfish it is? Sharks will become extinct soon if we don't protect them! Don't do these bad and wrong things! Let's start protecting our nature, our animals and our home. Let us all do our part for the Earth together! When you have made an effort to protect our planet, I will come to Hong Kong again! For now, I am little disappointed with Hong Kong but I hope that I will be satisfied next time!" said Miss Morris.

In the end, they had lunch at another restaurant. Andy and Sally promised that they will try to protect the environment. Then, they sent Miss Morris to the airport. Miss Morris was looking forward to her next trip in Hong Kong.
